Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:

When is enough, enough? I think it may very well be when I see more and more tax dollars go down the tube to persecute a business and with no perceptible gain to me or the general public. It seems to me that my dollars are being used to assist other major corporation executives line their pockets. I was under the impression that a satisfactory settlement had been reached. I guess also the attorneys must feel that there is more to be gained by the hours charged for continuing litigation. Let them go back to chasing ambulances and let Microsoft's competitors go to marketing their own products for their profits.
